[REDACTED]
Dear [REDACTED]

I've had it on my conscience to drop you a few lines, promptly upon my return, to indicate my sincere apology at my failure to renew acquaintance on the occasion of my recent visit in London. You may find it difficult to believe my assurance that I wanted at least to ring you up and exchange friendly greetings, but didn't have time or opportunity to do even that little courtesy. Our Director kept us on the move at such a rapid pace that we had no moment to ourselves, except at hours when it was impractical or inadvisable to phone our friends, such as at midnight or later!

I hope you will forgive me and will accept my statement that I was really avid to see you and to discuss matters of mutual interest in the field of history.

Please tender my apologies also to Miss [REDACTED] whom I wanted very much to see, too.

With best wishes for the New Year, greetings to [REDACTED] to you, and your associates, I am,

Sincerely,
