Dear Dr. Cramer:

Upon return from leave I found to my regret that you had called, apparently to say farewell before taking off on your new position.

I want to tell you how sorry I was to have missed seeing you before leaving us. I would very much have liked to talk things over, not in hope of changing your decision, but with a view to learning from you things which might help us.

With best of luck to you and hoping to see you some time in future, I am,

Sincerely,

William F. Friedman
